LETTER FROM TRAVELER IN LONDON, ENG.

Friend Emerson:

In less than two hours we got from Northampton to London, and as has been our luck in the past, we were saluted with a shower. As our baggage had been checked to our stopping place, we took the subway—a rather bold proceeding for strangers—but we arrived at our hotel without the least trouble. The subway trains are of two kinds, steam and electric, and consist of first, second and third class cars. As the distance is not great, and the seats as good as those in the New York subways, nearly every one rides third class. The surface traffic is by cab or omnibus and motor bus.
The busses are two deckers, and are a very convenient and cheap way of getting around the city. Fare is one to two pence, according to distance.
We had a map of the city, but the streets are so crooked, and the names change so often even if somewhat straight, that we gave it up and depended on bobbies or policemen,
who are very polite, and generally gave us the right information, for even to them the crooked streets are sometimes too much. As our hotel was within five minutes walk of the general postoffice we were within easy distance of the principal sights.

The first was St. Pauls Cathedral—an immense and massive structure—but not as fine inside as some we had seen. There are a number of fine tombs, among them being that of Wellington. We attended a morning and afternoon service on Sunday, and except for the singing the service is lost on the audience on account of the size of the building and distance of the minister. The choir consisted of about 75 voices—boys and men.
Westminster Abbey is the oldest and most interesting here. We got in just as the morning prayers began, so we had to wait as no one is allowed to meander around during services.
As you probably know, there are all kinds of people buried here, kings,
queens, dukes, princes, bishops,
poets, etc., etc. For a sixpence you can see the last resting place of some very bloody villains and their victims, all done by divine right and the grace of God, and who are now buried as good christians in the house of the Lord. Strange, is it not?

Nearby is the Parliament House,
open only on Saturday to the public,
so we were on hand that day. The fine room was the king's robing room,
where he puts on his best clothes.
As he was not in when we called we passed through the Royal Gallery, in which are some fine paintings, to the House of Lords, where we took seats and looked around while resting.
But we can't describe everything in detail, so will say everything in the house is fine. After resting we passed through a lobby into the Princes'
room, then through another lobby into the House of Commons. Here there is no carved woodwork, and the seats are not so soft. You next pass down into Westminster hall, where the old kings used to have high old times eating and drinking; and there is a brass plate in the floor where one of them stood when he was sentenced to have his head chopped off. This hall has a fine carved oak ceiling without supporting columns. You next pass down into the crypt and chapel, very fine with gilding and marble, also has the finest baptismal font we have seen so far. This place was evidently designed as a handy resort for the lawmakers and law-breakers to ease their guilty con-sciences by prayer after a particular villainous piece of work. It is not used much nowadays. We did not ask why not. The main or Victoria tower of the Parliament House is about as large square and as high as the Call building in San Francisco.

Trafalgar square is a fine open place, with the Wellington monument.
The National Gallery of fine arts faces the square, so we went in and looked at the paintings, mostly by old masters. But we liked the late gallery on the shore of the Thames better, for here all the pictures are by modern artists. We called at the Bank of England one morning. It has no windows on the street side.
All the light is from inside courts.
As we entered the yard we saw a gentleman who by his grand cloak, cocked hat and uniform we thought was the lord mayor. But he was only there to see that no one swiped the pavements. Everybody inside was busy adding farthings, pence, shillings, pounds and guineas, and as our credit was not good there we soon passed out to the Mansion house where the lord mayor is supposed to reside. If we are not wrong

the present one made his money making beer, and instead of building a church, got his present job and honor.

Of course we took in the Tower—a relic of bloody times and villain-ies of the past, and now used as barracks for troops and incidentally extracting sixpences and shillings
from sightseers, for which small sum
you can see where they murdered children and grown-ups—they have engraved brass plates to show the exact spot—also where they chopped
off the heads of queens and others, all by divine right. To make this place more attractive they have the crown jewels in one part and the coronation robes of King Edward VII
by the grace of God, and his queen in another part of the tower. The whole show for a shilling a head, with shocks for the nervous and museum of ancient weapons and armor thrown in. The whole thing, with its history, is as bad as Madam Toussard's waxworks chamber of horrors, which,
having such a wide reputation, we could not miss. We saw our president done in wax, very life like.

There was nothing special doing at the Crystal Palace the way we went out, but it is a fine place, with nice parks. St James park is in front of the Buckingham palace. In the park is a statue of the gallant duke of York, who had 10,000 men. "He marched them up the hill, and he marched them down again." Every Englishman knows that song. We did not go in the palace. His R. H.
was in the mountains, so we merely left our card. We also visited the Roman Catholic cathedral of Westminster. It is built of hard burned brick, as the interior, only partly finished, is to be of marble mosaics.
The parts finished are indeed fine and when finished will be as fine and beautiful as anything in England.

We also visited a number of other churches here, also the Guildhall, where the council meets, and which was being made ready for some French government visitors.

The Horse Guards at Whitehall look fine in their pipe-clayed pants and saddles, with black boots, red coats
and brass helmets on black horses.
Nobody knows what they guard, probably there have always been some there, so they keep it up.

Went one night to see "Avalanche,"
a spectacular play, at the Hippodrome. It was very realistic, with snow and water, and the men and women coming down the mountain in the avalanche.

The stores here, as in all large cities, are full of fine goods, and prices are very little different than in San Francisco. If any one tells you a shilling will go as far here as a dollar with you, tell him to show
you. While at the Tower we asked one of the "beefeaters," as the special guard is called, why the name.
He said at one time it was the custom of one of them to taste all the food before it went to the king for fear of poisoning by his friends or enemies. Now, instead of tasting the food, they guard the castle treasure,
and look well fed.

Now, after a week in London we leave for "gay Paree." With best wishes to all.

Yours,

Waltenspiel.

First Heavy Rainfall

The first heavy rain of this season fell last Sunday. Over three quarters of an inch fell on that day, mostly within the space of an hour. It rained heavily through the eastern part of the county. The rain has been a great benefit to the roads, effectually laying the dust, and not softening
the roadbed sufficient to make travel difficult. In fact, unless we have copious rain shortly, the roads in the upper country will be better for teaming than they have been all summer. The rainfall for the season foots
up as follows:

July 3	0.16
October 22	0.18
October 23	0.04
October 26	0.81
October 30	0.01
Total for season	1.15
Same for last year	2.38

OUR AUKUM LETTER

Oct. 25.—We understand that our old friend Chas. Green once superintendent of the Plymouth Consolidated mine, is on a visit to his old town, Plymouth. With him it must be like visiting the ruins of some grand old structure of by gone days.
Many men who were employed in and around this once great mine have crossed to the great unknown. Many he was familiar with are no more and their void must cast a gloom over the old man now, who was but in his prime then.

Before the Plymouth mines were born Charlie Green as he was familiarly called was superintending the ditch that afterward became the property of Hayward and Hobart and if I remember rightly they were bought from John O'Brien and the Writer estate by McCarry and Co. of Sacramento city. This was in 1870. The Pacific mine was then unknown. The Empire mine was then known only as the Hooper mine. Prior to this in 65 and 66 William Hooper familiarly known as Bill, worked the mine with a small crew of men and crushed his rock in a ten stamp mill, built upon Dry Creek, about 2 miles from the mine. The mine was found and owned by Edward L. Simpson; at the start he sold out to Hooper and for a while Hooper made it pay, notwithstanding the many disadvantages he was obliged to encounter.
As depth was reached the the work
became more expensive and Hooper shut down and went to Grass Valley
when he "blew in" his accumulations from the mine. Hooper dragged out a weary, unlucky and uneventful period, marked with many disappointments, finally he induced Hayward and Hobart to take hold of the mine selling almost the entire property to them, and retaining only a very small share for himself. He became superintendent of the mine and held the position until he sickened and died somewhere along in '75. It was then that Charlie Green became superintendent of the mine which he held for a considerable length of time.

Mrs. Clary Hitea and daughter Maria, returned to their home at Aukum last Monday from Oakland, where they have been for a couple of months.

Fred Helm has let a contract to some men to sink farther down upon his mine situated at the head of Slate Creek, which he bought from Frank Tragoriza three years ago. There has been some immensely rich rock taken out of the mine where Tragoriza worked it. We wish Mr. Helm unbounded success. May it turn to a vertiable bonanza for him.

We understand that Mr. Isaac Mc-
Clary was pretty sick on Wednesday last. He lives at Oleta. He has seen the town come up and down. When the town was known as Middletown it was booming, for the sturdy miner came to spend his weeks accumulations at the gambling table, or in bachinallian merriment or trip the "light fantastic" with the dark eyed maids of Montezuma. The weird air that hovers over the old town of by gone days, has gone into the realms of the dingy past like some wild beast, it has grown tame and has settled down to repent into an innuendo of transient repose.

Sheep and the Highways.

Some month ago Clarence Kirtland drove into a band of sheep at night in the road near Diamond Springs
where the herder had encamped.
The sheep were lying in the road and springing up suddenly they frightened the horse which ran away and caused some trouble or damage. The herder, named Seronda, was prosecuted for misdemeanor in obstructing
the public highway, was convicted before Justice Arrasmith at El Dora
do, and was fined $50 An appeal
was taken to the Superior Court

This week Judge Arnot has rendered a decision refusing a new trial and affirming the judgment of the lower court. He expresses his conclusions as to the law in the following language:

"Primarily and of necessity the highways of the county are used for the passing and repassing of the public. Long continued use of a highway improperly can never ripen into a right to continue the same. Sheep may be driven over them and may even occupy a portion of the highway temporarily, for resting and for convenience, even over night, but this

The appeal was taken for the purpose

he obstructs the road, hinders travel,
or causes damage.

CITY OFFICIAL PAPER.

FRIDAY ..... NOVEMBER 1, 1907

VOLUME FIFTY THREE.

With this issue the Ledger enters upon the fifty-third volume. Just fifty two years ago to a week the Ledger was launched into the newspaper world in the town of Volcano—at that time in the full tide of its prosperity as the most liberal gold producer in the territory now comprising Amador county, and the liveliest and most populous mining camp hereabouts. The first number was issued October 27, 1855, with Thomas H. Springer as proprietor and editor. It was a thing of small dimensions in its beginning, following the course of nature in this respect, which has wisely ordained that everything shall be little at its birth. It was then about one-half its present size. The election for the organization of Amador county had been held only three months before, and the infant government has hardly got fairly started on its way. The Ledger and the county of Amador may be said to be twins in birth. Unlike animated existence, which waxes and wanes with the advancing years—a newspaper and a county organization—human creations though they be—are expected to grow stronger as the months and years, and decades roll on. Man perishes like the grass of the field, but oftentimes his works live on.

The Ledger was born in times of great portent politically. The nation was treading in the thorny pathway that preceded its regeneration. Events were moving rapidly toward that mighty crisis, the "parting of the ways," in which the sword had to be unsheathed in defense of national unity, and for the maintenance of national honor. When the Ledger was first started it was an independent sheet. But those days of political stress and storm were such that newspapers, like individuals, had to declare themselves on one side or the other. The journalistic doughfaces were universally execrated, as moral cowards should be whenever issues involving tremendous consequences not only to the United States as a nation, but to mankind generally, were being fought out to a finish in the arena of debate prior to the final arbitrament of war. Though an infant of days, the Ledger was not deficient in backbone. In the presidential campaign of 1856 it was not flat-footed in support of John C. Fremont, the pathfinder of California, and who was selected as the first standard-bearer of the republican party, to blaze the way for the glorious achievements that were then hidden in the future, but soon to be accomplished. In the following Lincoln campaign, when the issue had crystalized between a united country and secession, the Ledger espoused the union cause, and soon thereafter was found squarely in the republican fold. In the nearly half-century that has elapsed since the republican party became dominant in national affairs, this journal has never stumbled or faltered in its allegiance to the principles for which that party has contended, and the supremacy of which has placed this nation pre-eminent in the annals of the world.

Of the fifty-two years of the Ledger's span of life, its present editor has held the reins for nearly twenty-four years—a much longer period than any of his predecessors. Mr. Springer, its founder, was identified with the paper for about eighteen consecutive years, or until he was elected state printer on the republican ticket, soon after which he sold the paper to R. M. Briggs and John A. Eagon, who sold out to the present owner in 1875. For over thirty-two years the writer has been associated with newspaper and editorial work in Amador county. We may be pardoned for expressing the belief that the people of Amador county appreciate the course which the Ledger has consistently and persistently followed in the discussion of local affairs, and which policy will be continued under the present management. They have manifested their confidence and approval by giving it a generous support.

We believe there are a few still living who have been identified with the Ledger as subscribers from the date of its birth in Volcano, or from the time of its removal to Jackson in 1857, just fifty years ago. We would be more than pleased to hear from these personally or by letter. It would certainly furnish data for an interesting article if these old-time patrons would supply us with the time and the circumstances under which they became enrolled upon the Ledger's subscription list. In some cases the original subscribers have traveled to their long home, but the mantle has descended upon their children or heirs. Let us hear from the few survivors, and mutually in spirit celebrate the jubilee.

THE BASEBALL CURVE

An Old Timer's Story of the Game That First Saw It.

IT WAS USED BY AN AMATEUR

According to This Old Professional Player, Arthur Cummings Was the Young Pitcher Who Was the Originator of the In and Out Shoots.

Speaking about the early history of baseball the other day, an old time professional player said there were many things not known generally.

"There is, for instance, the matter of curve pitching. Who pitched the first curved ball? No; don't name any of the men that won pennants and got $10,000 a year. The pioneer wasn't a professional, but an amateur—that is, he was an amateur until his curves made him famous.

"His name was Arthur Cummings, and he was a New York boy, a tall, thin young fellow with hair as blond as a chorus girl's. How he came to discover curve pitching I don't know, but it was generally believed afterward that he hit on it by accident. He tried it out for the first time in 1867 in a game between two scrub teams in Washington.

"The famous Excelsior club of New York was then visiting Washington as the guest of the old National club, and the two played a series of games on the old White lot. Toward the end of the series some one suggested that the young New Yorkers who had come over with the Excelsiors make up a scrub nine and play a nine of Washington boys as a sort of comic interlude.

"The suggestion was adopted, and the New York nine consisted of four or five Excelsior substitutes and a number of other young fellows, among them Arthur Cummings. The Washington nine was made up in the main of players belonging to the Junior Nationals, the crack amateur team of Washington.

"Cummings was a rising young pitcher, but no one thought that there was anything remarkable about him, and the Junior Nationals prepared to knock him out of the box. But when the first batsman fanned out the Washingtonians began to look surprised.

"It's the darndest thing I ever saw," said this batsman. "I struck right out at all three balls, and every one of them seemed to jump aside just as it got near the plate. One jumped outward, another inward, and the third seemed to rise. Maybe I'm beginning to see things."

"It puzzled Jewell, the catcher, too, not to speak of Al Mills, the umpire. Jewell caught all of the balls because it was then the custom for the catcher to stand far back and catch on the first bounce, but it made him dizzy.

"The second batsman of the Junior Nationals went to the bat and walloped the air three times too. Al Mills came up close to the plate to see what was wrong. It looked to him as if Cummings were wild.

"Just keep your head there," he said to the third batsman, "and you'll get your base on balls."

"This third batsman had a steady hand, and, sure enough, he got his base on balls. Cummings pitched the ball, and it seemed to be coming straight for the plate, when suddenly, just as it was ten feet or so away, it curved out and missed the plate by a foot. Mills called a ball.

"The next ball came straight on, but the batsman, hoping to hit it and profiting by his experience, swung his bat far out. But, instead of curving out like the last one, it seemed to jump. It crossed the plate on a level with the batsman's eyes.

"That scared him, and he just stood there without making a move until a succession of wild balls sent him to first base. The fourth batsman struck out so easily that it was pathetic.

"Well, sir, Cummings began to get more control over the ball after that first inning, and Mills had to admit that it was coming over the plate; but, except by accident, not a single Junior National batsman could touch it. It jumped; it sank; it wobbled from side to side. Mills rubbed his eyes and wondered how the thing was done. Cummings merely smiled.

"In the fifth inning one of the Nationals by dumb luck landed on the sphere and drove it into the next county. There were two men on bases at the time, and this home run brought them home. That gave the Nationals three runs. So far as I know, they made no other runs in the whole game. "After it was all over the whole town buzzed about Cummings' queer pitching. As for him, he was as silent as the grave.

"How do you make the ball curve?" asked a hundred persons.

"Does it curve? Cummings would say, innocent-like.

"And then he would shut up and become a clam.

"When he got back to New York he was signed by the champion Athletics and became their star pitcher. Other pitchers watched him and got on to the trick, but it was three years before anybody did it as well as he. During those three years his team kept the championship.

"And that, so far as I know, is the story of the origin of the curve ball."—Baltimore Sun.

Ador County Descriptive Article

Ador county comprises an area of square miles. It lies on the west slope of Sierra Nevada mountains, embraces within its territory all diversity of valley, foothill, and mountainous lands.

Climate.—The climate of the portions of the county is as genial and healthful as can be found anywhere in California. As climate is one of the valuable assets of this favored region in attracting population, Ador is second to no county in this respect. It should, and no doubt will in the future, when its climatic advantages are thoroughly understood and appreciated, become a health resort not only for those in less favored states, but for the residents of other parts of California. The temperature alone the central portion rarely falls below 30 degrees above zero in winter, and as it rises to 100 degrees in the summer. Snow seldom falls in the settled districts, and never remains on the ground for more than a few hours. Of course, in the high mountain regions of eastern Ador the snowfall is very heavy—which is characteristic of the Sierra Nevada range. The summer season is always accompanied with nights; permitting of sound, refreshing slumber. Fogs are rare, cyclones are unknown, thunderstorms are frequent.

Old Mining.—The county, although in other sources of wealth, comparatively untouched, is noted principally for her quartz mines. The best gold mines in America are located here. The Kennedy mine is now yielding gold in liberal quantities fromartz extracted from a depth of over 1,000 feet below the surface, with every indication that the pay-off extends to much greater depth. Since the discovery of gold, the county has contributed fully $100,000,000 to the world's supply of the precious metal. The mines are still yielding at the rate of about two million dollars annually. Nearly all of this wealth is produced by at ten to fifteen operating on what is called the "mother lode," stretching across the county in a north-east direction a distance of twenty miles. The mines aggregate between 500 and 500 stamps, and furnish employment for over 10,000 miners. This industry is still in its infancy. The explored territory, even along the old belt, is far in excess of the land that has actually been worked and respected. The county offers to one of the most inviting fields to be found anywhere in the world for the investment of capital in the fascinatingness of gold mining, not alone along the mother lode, but also in the almost untouched mineralized country of the belt, some ten or twelve miles from the main lode.

Resources.—We have copper, deposits of pottery, coal, marble, slate, granite, and soapstone or all undeveloped. Agricultural Capabilities.—The agricultural possibilities equal, if not exceed, mineral riches. The valley lands produce anything that can be grown in the most favored sections. The foothill lands all kinds of deciduous fruits thrive; also all kinds of staple are raised where irrigation is practicable along the numerous water courses. Further up in the mountains, in an altitude of 2,000 to 2,500 feet, the land is admirably adapted for apples and potatoes. A ready market for the quantity now raised of the commodities can be found in the mining towns.

Rape culture and winemaking are becoming important industries. Both grapes and wine commanding a higher price than the product of the land.

Land is cheap compared with other portions of the state. Improved farms may be secured for one-fourth the price of some places. Unimproved land can be had from $5 to $10 per acre. It does not require a fortune to acquire a small ranch. There is room for the addition to our agricultural population. Vast tracts now devoted to the ranges might be made the homes of hundreds of prosperous farmers.

Ador has a population of less than 10,000. Three-fourths of this is concentrated in a strip of three miles above the mineral belt. Jackson, the county seat, has about 1,000 inhabitants, and is incorporated of the sixth class. Other towns are Sutter Creek, Ador City, Dryden, Plymouth, Volcano, Pine Grove, Oleta. Ione City is the metropolis of the valley section, a thriving town of 10,000 inhabitants.

The community is law-abiding. Educational facilities are excellent. A clubhouse is within easy reach of every family. There is one high school, located at Ione.

The assessment roll for 1907 is $5,000,000, and the tax rate for both state and county purposes $2 on the $100.

The Southern Pacific has a branch running to Ione. From this Ione and Eastern railroad extends five miles further to the mining region. Religious denominations and organizations are well represented. The plant of the Standard Oil Company is the largest in the four miles from Jack-

"Beggar My Neighbor."

By MARTHA M'ULLOCH-WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

"Five—nine—eleven—thirteen." Miss Gatty counted anxiously, surveying her flock of hens. "I can't make out any more—but, dear me, the creatures fidget so—then they're all exactly alike."

Again she counted, again, yet again. The tale was still the unlucky thirteen. Miss Gatty looked worried. Well she might. The hens were not her own, but held in trust for her absent sister.

That, however, was less disquieting than the possibilities behind possible runaways. Since the missing three had not come to the feeding call, it was clear that they were either dead or in distress. Either state meant the same thing—trespass upon the Lator lawn and strawberry beds. The Lator establishment loomed big and imposing 200 yards away, but that was no distance at all to active foragers such as White Leghorns. Moreover, there had been trouble before—trouble which had left a residuum of strained relations between the big house and the cottage. The cottage was almost the Gattys' sole possession, albeit there had been a time when everything in sight had been Gatty land.

SHE WAS SOBBING—HARD, DRY SOBS.

"I don't know what to do. Susanna would go look for them," Miss Gatty said to the clothes post, her sole support and confidant. "I suppose I ought to do it, but then how can I? Those Lators are so new and so rich they'd insult me—why, they weren't even afraid to be nasty to Susanna. Actually the woman told her she had no business to keep hens if she couldn't afford wired runs for them—as though we hadn't a right to keep anything on please on our own place. But I do wish they'd stay at home. And I wish Susanna were here. That's selfish. She is having a fine time at quarterly meeting and, patience knows, she goes seldom enough anywhere."

Miss Gatty was slender and pale and pretty if she had turned thirty. She had appealing brown eyes and slim hands, taper fingered in spite of house and garden work. She loved the garden. Indeed, it had been her salvation after she had worn herself to a shadow wrestling with primary scholars. She did not in the least mind hens there. True, they scratched and pecked and wallowed mightily, and her garden was, in fact, chaotic. Flowers grew indiscriminately cheek and jowl with vegetables.

Notwithstanding she understood how aggravating vagrant hens might be to more orderly gardeners; also that with strawberries ripe the flock was a beson of destruction. Those at her feet, having eaten their breakfast to the last grain, began straying lightly and as they walked preening themselves. Watching them narrowly, she saw suspicious scarlet flecks upon more than one white breast. They had certainly been at the Lator berries. She put her hands up over her head, thinking hard.

It was 8 o'clock of a lovely June morning. Birds sang riotously all about. Miss Gatty listened to them and said, nodding her head toward the hens: "I do believe all this comes of going against nature. If you had broods like the birds you'd be too busy feeding them to go hunting mischief."

"Humph! They'd be worse than ever. I say thank the Lord there are no squalling keepers to whoop them up. If there were—well, I'd have to move. That's all," a gruff masculine voice said behind her. Miss Gatty turned as though shot. What she saw confronting her evoked a strangled cry of dismay. A tall man stood glowering at her and swinging militantly a bunch of headless white hens. "I've brought back your property, not being a thief," he went on. "Now, let me pay you for the satisfaction I had in wringing their necks. Let me also warn you the rest will go the same way as sure as they cross my fence. Here, take the money. If $5 is not enough!"

"Will you please to go away—instantly?" Miss Gatty said, actually stamping her foot. "Keep your money—keep the poor chickens too. Maybe they'll pay some part of your damages!"

"Thank you. But I'm not in the poultry line—neither restaurants," the man said, flinging the dead hens at her feet. A flock of blood flew upon Miss Gatty's faded frock. Noting it, the man said awkwardly: "Please excuse me, I've been acting the brute. But those berries were my pride!"

"You had a right to—do as you did," Miss Gatty panted. "Only—please go away! Go quick!"

She spoke stooping over the hens. The man looked at her, close enough to see two tears plash down on the corpses. He ran incontinently from the sight, but not altogether cravenly. Inside five minutes he was back with a basket of fine, dewy, scarlet berries. Miss Gatty had vanished. So had the slain. He walked around to the back door searching for her without finding.

Being a determined person, he stepped boldly inside. Miss Gatty sat in the prim dining room, her head buried in her arms beside the old mahogany table. She was sobbing—hard, dry sobs. The intruder half turned as though to run away again, but thought better of it, stepped forward and set down his basket in front of her with a resounding thump. As she sprang up startled he said in an embarrassed voice: "Maybe you don't know who I am. My name's Lator!"

"But I did know it. You should not be here," Miss Gatty panted. "Your wife!"

"Thank you, but I haven't got a wife—not yet," Mr. Lator said, with a grin. "You must be thinking of my sister-in-law. Fanny keeps house for me, but she hates the place and wants to leave. I think I'll let her—and see if I can't have peace—and neighbors. Don't you think we ought to be neighbors? I do. So I've brought these," pointing to the berries. "Won't you give me some radishes to take home for my lunch?"

"To be sure, I'll be so glad!" Miss Gatty cried, springing up, quite forgetful of tear stains, and darting toward her dear garden. She meant to go alone, but Andrew Lator was right behind her. Long before the radishes were chosen they had buried all grievances, past, present and to come. Before he left she had told him all about Susanna—Susanna, who was the youngest, but had so much a wiser head on her shoulders. All unconsciously she had told him many other things—things that set him meditating and smiling all the way home. Once or twice, too, he blushed and gnawed angrily at his mustache, muttering: "Lord, to think that I offered her money! Took her for a quarrelsome old maid! It's going to take time to live that down, but I'll do it as sure as I'm six feet two!"

Susanna stayed on for a whole week. Quarterly meeting had turned out to be the beginning of a revival, but Miss Gatty did not mind in the least.

"You must not worry thinking I am lonely," she wrote. "I am quite too busy, keeping the hens as they should be kept. And really I am finding out that we have very good neighbors."

Susanna puzzled over that last sentence, at least until she came home to find Mr. Lator established in the privilege of keeping ward over the foragings of the White Leghorns. Her eyes twinkled comprehension as he shook hands on presentation. He caught the twinkle and answered it boldly with: "Please may I have your sister Helen?" "I knew it would do no good to ask before you came home."

"Why, yes; I think you may," Susanna said, the twinkle deepening. "But do you think it is quite fair—this way of playing beggar my neighbor?" "You're really responsible. Your hens have taught me to take what I want regardless of bounds," he flung back at her. Susanna laughed outright and answered honestly, "If they really did it I'm mighty glad."

The Last Step.

When we reach the higher studies of foreign languages we are told to seek diligently to learn to think in the alien tongue, as well as to read and write it. That is, we are expected to catch the meaning of the strange words without any connection with English or English speech.

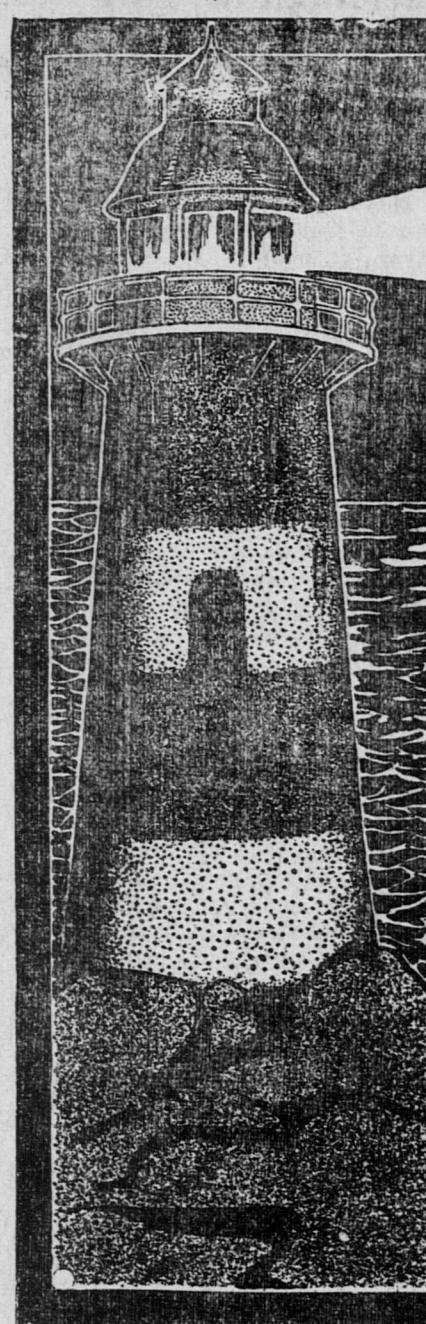

From this one may come to appreciate the experience of a certain Porto Rican negro. He was asked, not very long after his arrival in the United States, if English was difficult for him. "Oh, no," he said. "I learn her ver' quick."

"So you could understand it and talk it?"

"Oh, yes, ver' good. But I have one trouble ver' long time. I speak good, an' I hear good, but can't dream in English. I always dream in Spanish. An' I feel ver' bad, an' I try so hard to dream English. An' one night I do. I dream English when I am asleep, an' I wake an' I cry, an' I weep for joy. I am happy. I can now dream in English."—Yonli's Companion.

Not Deceived.

A pretty anecdote of a dog is given in Sir C. J. F. Bunbury's "Diaries and Correspondence." It was told by Sir George Napier. When the British army was in the south of France, after the battle of Toulouse, Sir George and several other officers visited the house of a gentleman who had a very fine dog, a poodle. The dog had been trained to receive food only when offered by the right hand, and the gentlemen amused themselves with testing his steadiness in this respect and found that he constantly refused to take bread from the left hand. But when he came to Sir George, who, having lost his right arm, of course offered the bread with his left hand, the dog looked earnestly at him and accepted the bread. Then the other officers tried to deceive him by disguising themselves so as to appear to have lost the right arm; but the dog's sagacity was not to be baffled, and he steadily refused to take bread from the left hand except from the one who was really one handed.

Miss Emma Boardman, Mrs. J. A. Laughton and Mrs. Jos. Fleming, who went to Santa Barbara two weeks ago to attend the Grand Chapter of Eastern Star, returned home Tuesday evening. After the session at Santa Barbara over a hundred Eastern Stars and Masons, chartered a special train and went to Los Angeles. They took in all the points of interest around there, visiting Long Beach, Redondo, Venice, Santa Monica, Santa Ana, Cawston Ostrich Farm and many other places, besides which they took a ride up Mt. Lowe on the cog railway. From there they went to San Diego and down to Tia Juana, which is in Lower California, just over the Mexican line. Some of the party wanted to bring laces, etc., out with them, an thought that by wearing them they would be exempt from duty. This used to be the case, but it was abused so much that the authorities have become very strict. Some of them put on a great many different things and had to pay a very heavy duty.

C. C. Jansen, the expert optician, accompanied by Mrs. Jansen, arrived in this city Tuesday evening from Chico. He intends to stay some time in this county, and will give every place in the county a thorough canvass in the interest of his profession. Those who need eye glasses cannot do better than by consulting him, as he stands high in his special line, and is thoroughly reliable in every way.

Divorce Mill In Quick Action

One of the most expeditious divorces in Amador county was decided last Saturday in the Superior court. Thos H. Gartlin of Ione was the plaintiff for dissolution of the marriage ties, and Clara Gartlin the defendant. R. C. Bole represented the plaintiff. The complaint was filed on Friday, October 23. The answer thereto, was filed the same day by W. J. McGee representing the defendant. The hearing was had the following day. George French and the plaintiff were the only witnesses examined. An interlocutory decree was granted the same day. That is one of the speediest divorce case hereabouts.

Making Citizens

Carlos G. White, assistant deputy United States district attorney, was here last Saturday representing the federal government in the hearing of the candidates for naturalization. An attorney in behalf of the government is required to be present at all such hearings under the present law. There were nine petitions before the court. Some failed to appear, one having left the county. One was denied citizenship on the ground of lack of the necessary educational qualifications. Several were continued until December 28. The applications for citizenship are much fewer in number than they were under the old law, notwithstanding the fact that we have a larger alien population than ever before. Under the existing strict law, many are disinclined to submit to the ordeal of examination.

Saloon Business Sold.

Virgilio Podesta who for several years has conducted the saloon at the corner of Court and Summit street opposite the court house, has sold the business and lease to Vic. Rocco of this town. The purchaser took possession this week. Jim Meek is attending to the business for the present, until Mr. Rocco can make other arrangements.

Will Remain Open.

Notwithstanding the legal holiday for the protection of the banks, the Bank of Amador County will continue to remain open and do business as usual. Nothing out of the ordinary has occurred here. There is no flurry, and no disposition on the part of the depositors to withdraw their money except for the demand of business. No trouble is anticipated with the banks in any part of Amador county.

Former Jackson Pastor Has Sad Adventure

A press dispatch from Grass Valley dated Oct 29, says:—While out quail shooting today in company with Rev. C. E. Winning, minister of the Methodist church, A. D. Best, a prominent shoe merchant of that city, was shot in the left shoulder and perhaps fatally injured. He was getting out of the buggy with the gun in his hand when the weapon was accidentally discharged and the load of quail shot penetrated the flesh to a considerable depth. The injured man was removed at once to the Jones Memorial hospital for treatment, and it is not known how serious the injury will prove to be. Mr. Best is a pioneer merchant of this city and has many friends who trust his wounds will prove to be only superficial.

On Sunday Nov. 3, services will be conducted as follows at the Methodist Episcopal church: The pastor will preach in the morning on "The promises of God," and in the evening on "The Christianity needed today." Special music by the choir. Sunday school at 2 p.m. and prayer meeting on Wednesday evening. All are cordially invited to these sermons.

Wm. J. McGee goes to San Francisco tomorrow on legal business. He will return Tuesday.

A LEGEND OF WORMS.

Prophecy of the Jewish Sage and Its Strange Fulfillment.

Rabbi lived during the time of the first crusade, and one of the legends of Worms connects him with this event. He was one day seated with his pupils, when a knight, full of papilled, made his way into the school-house and with threatening mien thus addressed him: "Rabbi, thy name for wisdom has reached me and I would I learn my fate from thee. I have assembled a host wherewith I purpose to drive the infidel Turk from the Holy City, but before I set out I demand to know whether my undertaking will succeed. Answer me at once. I have no time for delay."

The rabbi replied: "Thou wouldst learn the future from me? Alas, I am unable to foretell it. God alone can say what the future will bring forth. I have no powers of divination, and my faith forbids the assumption of them. Pray, therefore, forgive me if I am unable to accede to thy request."

"Rabbi," exclaimed the knight in tones of passion, "I will listen to no refusal. Well I know that thou canst foretell the future if thou wilt. As truly as I am Godfrey of Bouillon, so truly do I promise to protect thee and thy community from all harm, even if thou shouldst foretell disaster to me. But if it is a successful issue that thou hast in store for me I will right royally reward thee in addition on my return. What? Art thou silent? Speak or by heaven my sword shall open thy mouth wide enough."

"My liege lord," answered the Jewish sage, "there is only one above who can penetrate the future. Unless I would deceive thee, which I dare not do, at most I can but venture an opinion of what will happen to thee. Thy undertaking will only succeed in part. Of thy immense host but three men and one horse's head will return in safety." With blanched countenance Godfrey of Bouillon turned to depart, exclaiming as he went, "Take care, Jew, if I return to find thou hast deceived me!" Godfrey of Bouillon went up to Jerusalem, captured it and became its first king.

But his success was short lived, and the tide of war turned against him. Defeat and disease decimated his vast host until there remained but four riders of them all who made their way to Worms. "The Jew has not spoken the truth," he remarked as the gates of the city came in sight. "He said we should return with only three riders and a horse's head. He has lost his reward." They rode up to the gates and demanded admission. The massive door behind was raised, and they passed through. But as the fourth rider was about to follow it fell down again with a heavy thud, decapitating the horse and leaving its trunk and burden outside the city. "Conduct me to the rabbi," said Godfrey of Bouillon. "I must see him at once." But the rabbi had long since left Germany.

Knew His Habits.

The following anecdote is given by an Indian officer as illustrative of the manners and customs of the wily Pathan: A certain general and his staff, while wending their way through one of the narrowest valleys of Tirah, were annoyed by the attentions of a solitary marksman, who from time to time sent a bullet unpleasantly close. At last the general turned to his orderly—a Pathan sower—and told him to dismount, take his carbine and try and stalk the mountaineer. The sower started off, and presently there was a crack and a gray bearded old Afridi tumbled headlong down the mountain side. The sower rejoined and fell into his place.

"Well done!" said the general. "But how on earth did you manage it so easily?"

"Oh," replied the sower, "I knew his habits. He was my father."—London Truth.

Where Fat Is Beauty.

In Tunis when a man wants to take another wife he picks out a girl and then carries to her father a pair of bracelets and a pair of anklets from one of the other ladies of his household. The bracelets and anklets are slipped on the young woman, and several months are allowed for her fattening. She must fatten until she completely fills the four ornaments or otherwise the man has a right to refuse her, for in Tunis fat is beauty, and a permanently slender girl has no chance of marriage.

In another column will be found an article on Amador county, its resources and the inducements it holds out to the homeseeker. This is intended to draw attention to Amador as a desirable place for immigrants to locate in. It is written for the outsiders, who know little or nothing of this favored county, except perhaps as a gold producer. It will serve the purpose in the absence of other and fuller information, to send to all inquirers concerning the opportunities in Amador county for intending emigrants to this state. We shall keep the article standing, and publish it in every issue for some time at least, or until a more elaborate description in pamphlet form can be gotten out.

MINING NOTES.

About fifty men were laid off at the Central Eureka on Tuesday morning for an indefinite time. The mine is employing a very small force just now.

Judge Rust last Wednesday ordered the Wildman lien cases reopened so that further evidence could be introduced, showing amount due lien men subsequent to sale under Bishop trust deed. As soon as this evidence is introduced the cases will be decided. W. J. McGee, who is attorney for Jon. R. Spring, former owner of the mine, is anxious to have the present owners settle with the creditors in cash on long time payments. McGee says the creditors can not afford to take stock, but he thinks if Mr Morphy will make a small payment down and other small payments every month or two it would be satisfactory to all. He is now trying to get Mr Morphy to make such a proposition.

AN Amador County Pioneer

Lady Passes Away

We take the following from the Stockton Record concerning the death of Mrs. Newton, widow of the late Dr. Newton, after whom, we believe the Newton copper mine was named:

After an illness of short duration Mrs. Mary Newton, one of the most beloved women of Northern San Joaquin, died at Woodbridge last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Until a few days ago it was thought she was greatly improved and would recover, but an apoplectic stroke hastened the end. Her death was a great shock to her many friends and it has plunged the community in sadness, for she was a woman of ideal character.

The deceased was the widow of the late Dr. Jabez Newton and the mother of Supervisor Newton, Cyrus Brownlee Newton, the noted entertainer, Fulton Newton of Stockton, Mrs. John Mayberry of Antioch, and Mrs. A. C. White of Stockton. She was also a sister of Mrs. J. C. Thompson of Stockton.

Mrs. Newton was a pioneer resident of this part of the state. In company with her parents, she came to California from Virginia, the state of her birth, in 1853. In 1854 she was married to Dr. Jabez Newton. Her maiden name was Mary Rutledge. The family at first located in Jackson, Amador county, but in 1870, Dr. and Mrs. Newton removed to Woodbridge to reside.

B. C. O'Neil who conducted a grocery on lower Broadway had his business closed up last week by his creditors. The attachments aggregate about $300.

PINE GROVE.

Oct. 30th—Refreshing showers have visited us during the past week with no frost, consequently the little blades of grass are coming forth to gladden the eye and tempt the appetite of the cattle.

Alex. Adams returned home from Calaveras co. on Sunday evening. He has been employed in flume building in that locality for the greater part of the summer, but he says Pine Grove looks pretty good to him.

The little son of Frank Luden's narrowly escaped being drowned in the big ditch one day last week. He had fallen into the water, but the timely arrival of the father saved the little fellow's life; he was quite purple when rescued, but no ill effects are apprehended.

Miss Rosa Downs, lately from the East, but now of Volcano, was the guest of Mrs Bradshaw on Tuesday.

Quite an interesting and instructive address was delivered by Rev. John Appleton on Sabbath evening. We were sorry to note the small congregation.

Our teacher Miss Watrous, reports a very enjoyable time while at institute. The young lady also visited her home in San Francisco while away.

SUTTER CREEK.

Dr. Gall and wife were over from Jackson last Monday.

The fore part of the week Walter Norton had his right arm broken in some way.

Last Tuesday evening several of our young people went over to Amador to skate.

Nunice Montesta came up from the city last Tuesday and returned Wednesday morning.

The Valley Brew ball team of Sutter are fixing up a diamond south of the town by sluicing in the tailings from the South and Central Eureka, and filling in with rock from the Wolverine dump. Saturday night, Nov. 2nd., they will give a dance in Leavaggi's hall to raise money to carry on the work.

The men of the Methodist church gave a Halloween social in the church parlors Thursday. Everyone had a good time.

The Sutter Creek stage has been receiving its share of the travel for the past few weeks. It is nothing new to see it loaded inside with half a dozen or more on top, besides baggage all over it. We are informed that the travel this way has been a great deal heavier lately than from Jackson. And most of them coming in, too, looks pretty good for Sutter.

There is another dance scheduled here for Friday Nov. 16th with imported music.

OLETA.

Oct. 28—We have had a nice little rain, which was welcomed by all.

Our tobacco super, I think from all appearance, is tired of his job with the tobacco venture, or can't stand the temptation of working alone, and has left the tobacco to ripen by itself.

George Smith and family have moved back to their old home at Irish Hill again.

Jim Whaley is going to move his family to Volcano to live.

Mrs. J. Rondey of Carson is a visitor at Mrs C. Wilson's at present. George Love is laid up with a sore hand.

Full Text of Important Decision Regarding Purchase of Hay.

This is an appeal from judgment of Justice Court of Township One in favor of plaintiff for the amount prayed for in his complaint. The appeal was upon questions of law and fact and the case was tried de novo.

The action was to recover the sum of $63.47 claimed to be balance due for hay furnished defendant at his special instance and request. The answer denies all the allegations of the complaint and sets up a counter claim alleging that plaintiff and defendant entered into an express contract by the terms of which plaintiff was to deliver to defendant at Jackson fifteen tons of hay at an agreed price of $ 15 per ton; that he had delivered 14770 pounds of hay but refused to deliver the remaining 15,230 pounds. That he had paid on account thereof $50, and was ready and willing to pay the balance of the purchase price amounting to $175, whenever plaintiff should deliver the remainder of the fifteen tons of hay, and that by reason of the failure of plaintiff to deliver the fifteen tons defendant had been damaged to the extent of $63.07.

The evidence at the trial showed that plaintiff agreed to sell to defendant and defendant agreed to purchase from him from twelve to fifteen tons of hay at $15 per ton.

There was no agreement concerning the mode of ascertaining the weight of the hay; whether it was to be weighed or taken according to the weight marked on the tags.

Plaintiff hauled some hay that he had purchased at the Head ranch, to the defendant's barn and some to the livery stable of O'Neil and Podesta in Jackson and hauled some from his own ranch to the livery stable. The livery stable proprietors weighed the hay. The hay from Head's ranch weighed up to the tag weight and was accepted, but the hay from the McFarland ranch fell short an average of twenty pounds in each bale and they refused to accept it at the tag weight. Plaintiff thereupon told defendant the hay was falling away short of the tag weight and that unless he would accept it at tag weight he would not haul any more.

Defendant informed him that he would be willing to allow five or six pounds off on each bale but no more; plaintiff then refused to have any more.

Defendant contends that this constituted a breach of contract and bases his counterclaim for damages upon it.

The first mention of the manner of ascertaining the weight of the hay was at this time, and therefore there could be no breach of a condition that was not mentioned in the contract and that had never existed. Defendant therefore had no cause of counterclaim but further than this there was no evidence before the court that defendant had any contract with any one to sell hay that he had to fulfill.

The evidence shows that he procured hay elsewhere and sold it at an advance. At all events there was no contract to sell any given quantity of hay that either plaintiff or defendant could have enforced against the other.

There remains but one point to consider, and that is the amount of balance due plaintiff for the hay that was delivered.

Plaintiff introduced evidence for the purpose of establishing a general custom in this community to buy and sell hay by the tag weight, but the preponderance of the evidence was largely against such a custom.

If it proved any custom at all it was a custom to weigh a few bales of each lot, and if the weight corresponded with the tag weight to accept it; if it fell short to weigh the entire lot or arrange the difference by deducting an agreed amount from the tag weight of each bale. The witnesses nearly all testified that hay will lose by drying and handling from five to ten pounds to the bale.

The testimony shows there were seventeen bales of the hay from plaintiff's ranch, and that these bales fell off 20 pounds per bale; allowing 5 pounds per bale for shrinkage would leave a shortage of 15 pounds per bale, or 255 pounds on the 17 bales, which at $15 per ton would amount to $1.91¼ or in rounds numbers to $1.95, which deducted from the balance claimed by plaintiff of $63.47 would leave a balance due him of $61.52.

It therefore follows that plaintiff is entitled to a judgment against the defendant for $61.52. The cost under the statutes follows the judgment. Counsel for plaintiff will prepare findings and judgment accordingly.

Done in open court October 29th, 1907.

Teachers' Institute.

The twelfth annual session of the Teachers' Association of Northern California held at Sacramento was by far the most successful institute ever held by that body. Besides the routine business which began on Tuesday and ran until Friday, the teachers were royally entertained and visited all the points of interest. Many well known educators from all over the country addressed them in general session. Among them were Richard G. Boone of Boston, whose subject was "Fundamentals in Education;" C. C. Van Liew, President of Chico State Normal School, "The Influence of Democracy on the Curriculum;" W. A. Gates, of the State Board of Charities and Corrections, "Man Building;" E. T. Mathes of Bellingham, Wash., Prof. F. B. Dresslar of Berkeley, and Prof. Harold Heath of Stanford with a stereopticon on Vesuvius.

On Tuesday and Friday the nine counties represented held their institutes in separate sessions. In the following minutes Mr. Ball mentions that only one teacher was absent, and then on account of illness, out of the sixty four, but he fails to mention that Amador was one of the very best represented.

Pythian Castle, 9th & I Sts.

Sacramento, Oct. 22, 1907.

The Amador County Institute was called to order by Supt. Greenhalgh at ten a.m. The following officers were appointed by the Supt.: Vice Presidents, J. E. Wylie and T. D. Davis; Secy., F. A. Ball; Committee on Resolutions, Miss Margaret Devan, Miss Henrietta Post, Rosa Barnett, and Geo. Goodall; Committee on Music, Miss Ida B. Herman, Miss Luma B. Munger, Miss Mabel Shaw, Miss Celia Watrous, Miss Hazel Prouty, J. E. Wylie, and F. A. Ball.

Appropriate music was rendered by the committee, after which the roll was called, all the teachers being present but one, whose absence was caused by sickness. Supt. Greenhalgh made some excellent remarks to the effect that an institute is beneficial only when the teachers are interested and are determined to get all out of it that is possible. The teachers were put upon their honor to attend all sessions and the meeting was adjourned to assemble in the afternoon with the T. A. N. C.

Many interesting lectures were listened to during the week. The one thing that seemed to stand out most prominently during the sessions was that children and people are educated by doing things. Learning is not education unless it can be used. The fact was deplored that so many of our boys never finish grammar school, and only five percent of those who begin ever finish high school. There seems to be a lack of interest in the schools for the boys. Some means should be found by which technical or manual training departments might be established. Boys have no way to learn a trade, the old apprentice days are past there are no public schools to teach him in that way. By committing a crime he can enter the Preston school and be fitted for almost any business manually.

On Friday morning the teachers were taken for a trolley ride, cars having been provided for each county. Sutter's Fort was visited, after which the cars proceeded to Oak park. After a stroll around the park the return trip was made to the State Printing Office where the teachers were shown how the text books are made.

At 1:30 p. m. the teachers were called to order by Supt. Greenhalgh. Roll was called and most of the teachers responded. The minutes of the opening session were read. The committee on resolutions was not ready to report, not having been able to meet, so the members were instructed to hand in their report after adjournment. Supt. Greenhalgh made some closing remarks, speaking of the success of the institute and thanking the teachers for their support. After the singing of Home Sweet Home, the institute on motion was adjourned.

Mrs Maude E. Hydenfeldt, widow T. O. Hydenfeldt, has sued D. Ryan, the republican candidate for mayor of San Francisco, for the recovery of 2000 shares of Zeile mining stock, alleged to be worth $1300, and said to have been deposited with Ryan as attorney. The suit is supposed to be for political purposes.

Last evening, being Halloween, the Eastern Stars entertained their children in the lodge rooms. A very enjoyable program was rendered by the children, and games were indulged in to pass the time. Everything was appropriate to the occasion, even the hall being decorated that way. The biggest thing of all to the children was a huge Halloween pie containing a gift for every youngster present.

According to Ed. Kane, who has recently returned from Nevada, that country is a good place to stay away from just at present. Kane is an experienced miner and speaks from a knowledge of the country. He says that you will see a whole lot more of the California people coming back convinced that this state is far ahead of Nevada in mining operations.

Wild catting is played out, and the only paying properties are in the hands of a few men, and these are employing little help. He says that were half the money spent in this county prospecting, that has been spent in Nevada, the returns would be one hundredfold to what that country can show.—Prospect.

Calvin Swinge, a boy employed at Walter and Nuland's butcher shop, was the victim of a peculiar accident last Tuesday. He was at work on the roof of the butcher shop at the time, along side the residence of John Nuner, which is in the second story of the building adjoining. Mr. Nuner was cleaning a shot gun in his room, when in some way the gun was discharged. The shot went through the inner boarding, then a four inch air space, and again through the outer boarding, and then a number of shots penetrated the leg of young Swinge. The shot were all extracted by assistance which was quickly at hand, and through the boy is pretty lame no serious results are looked for.—Prospect.

At the Napoleon Copper mine near Telegraph City, operations have about ceased for the season. About 6000 tons of ore have been shipped this year. To the reduction works, the ore being hauled to Milton by traction engines. These are not practicable during the rainy season and probably but little will be done at the mine during the winter.—Prospect.

William Hall and Richard Donovan were arrested last week in lone for firing off a revolver in the street and thereby disturbing the peace of the town. They were given the alternative of $50 or fifty days. Donovan paid the fine but Hall couldn't dig up the money so had to go to jail.

After having spent twenty years selling the product of the Crown Mills of Stockton on the road, Charles G. Gall will retire on the last of November and take a good rest before engaging in business for himself. He is now making his last trip through the Southern mines, in which territory he is one of the most popular men known to the trade.—Citizen.

Stockton Gives the Lone Basketball Team a Boost

The Stockton Record has the following to say of the playing of the high school baseball team, at the recent game with Stockton:

Lone has team work that will make our "All-Star" team sit up and take notice. I have seen the "Crescent Five," champions of the world, the Red Wings, and many other teams, that were "all wool and a yard wide," lay games in this city and other places. I have sat and wondered at the remarkable way in which those teams would work the ball down to the end of the court and shoot it into the basket. But I take my hat off to lone. That team is the goods. I don't know where those fellows came from, but they are there going to school. They say that they are going to play basket ball this winter. From what they did to Heald's Saturday afternoon, it is safe to say that they have commenced playing already. Those lone boys don't care how they are located when they try for goals. They get them from any old position. They are right up to snuff on pivot shot. Their one-hand stabs are great. Their side-stepping is ditto. Their passing was something that put the Heald's boys in a blue funk right away quick. I admit that they played away on their own court and in the sun, two things our boys are not used to, but even those two things didn't take the speed out of our fellows so that it could be noticed.

When the whistle blew for the last time, the score was announced 31 to 8 in favor of lone. Now, wouldn't that jar you.

Bounty For Lions

The California Fish and Game Commissioners have offered a reward of $20 for each scalp or pelt of a Californian lion or panther delivered at the offices of the Commission in San Francisco, accompanied by an affidavit taken before a magistrate specifying that the animal had been killed since October 1st, 1907, and stating the date and place of killing of the animal.

This measure was decided upon in the interest of sportsmen and those engaged in cattle raising in California. The California lion and panther destroy all kinds of game, sheep, calves and colts, and are a menace to ranchers in many sections of the state. While it was difficult to induce a legislature to make appropriations for bounties, the Commissioners deem it proper to apply a portion of the money received for hunters' licenses for that purpose. It requires patience and skill to capture the California lion or panther, and a reward of $20 will undoubtedly stimulate hunters and farmers to greater effort. The Commission will be glad to receive information and suggestions from those living in regions most infested by those animals, as to the best method of capturing them.

Closes Down Work.

The Union Construction Company, which was engaged in building the immense power plant and line of the Stanislaus Power Company in Toulumne and Calaveras counties, was forced to cease operations on the 24th and discharge temporarily its 1400 employees. The Stanislaus Power Company, which had engaged to spend $10,000,000 in the erection of its plant, was being financed by the Knickerbocker Trust Company of New York. The Trust Company suffered heavy runs last week, and was forced to suspend payment, although it is claimed authoritatively that the company is solvent. It is understood that the suspension of operations in Calaveras and Toulumne is only temporary and that the work will be resumed early next spring. The Union Construction Company had the contract for erecting the plant and is in no way connected with the Trust Company. It paid off all its men in full. It would have been a few months at most until work would have been suspended for the winter anyway, as the rigors of the winter storms prevents work being done from December till April in that altitude.

Land and Mineral Decisions.

(Reported by Woodford D. Harlan, Land Attorney, Washington, D. C.)

Coal Land—The declaratory statement and affidavit must be made by the applicant himself; subsequently certain proofs and acts may be made by an agent; where the declaration was improperly made by an agent in the absence of adverse filing or conflict, it may be made nun pro tunc.

Contest—During the pending of a contest, in which each party alleges priority of settlement, both are bound to comply with the law; and if the successful party fails to do so, such failure is properly the subject of inquiry on behalf of the losing party.

Final Proof—Taken outside of office hours may be considered, when so taken because the witnesses could not attend at any other time, and their testimony was submitted with due opportunity for cross-examination by the adverse claimant.

Homestead Entry—Illegal possession of land will not defeat the right of another to enter the same under the homestead law.

Mineral or Agricultural Lands—On proof of the mineral character of a tract and allowance of mineral entry therefor the burden of proof is upon one who asserts the non-mineral character of the tract, even though it was returned as agricultural. The burden of proof is upon an agricultural claimant for land returned as mineral.

Solar Electricity—Improved Grain—
Left Handed Lobsters—An Artificial Face—Bending of the Land by Storms—Eczema from Dentrifices—
A Workshop Telephone—A Drop in Liquid—Epilepsy from Eye Strain.

To show the electricity produced by the sun and moon, Albert Nodon, the French meteorologist, has used an apparatus including an aluminum leaf electrometer so perfectly insulated that it would retain a charge of 1500 volts for a fortnight, and has proven that the rays of the sun at high altitude in a clear sky induce a positive charge in well insulated metal leaves. Clouds or damp air over head cut off or absorb this charge, though screens of black card board or insulating material have no influence. The electrification is changing constantly, and striking variations precede wind and rain-storm, while especially violent ones indicate trembling of the earth. The full moon produces similar effect. The changes are barely observable at sea-level, probably on account of the electric dissipation by water vapor, but at the Pic du Midi observatory they sometimes reach 400 volts per minute. This suggests an important new line of work for mountain stations.

A new era in British farming seems to be developing from the experiments at the Cambridge University farm at Impington. During the last eight years all known varieties of wheat have been collected, and while most of them could not be acclimatized, a few have been selected for resistance to rust, good cropping capacity, free milling quality, stiff straw, etc, and have been crossed with British wheats so successfully as to promise an immediate increase in value of ten per cent or more. Like improvement of barley and other plants is anticipated.

That lobsters are right-handed and left-handed is a new discovery by Sir J. Crichton-Brown. About 19 per cent have sharp teeth only on the right claw, but a few have those teeth on the left side.

An example of a mechanical face is the chef d'oeuvre of Dr. Delaire, a French surgeon, and replaces a man's chin, part of the lower jaw and the whole of the upper jaw, part of the tongue, and the entire nose, all of which had been blown away by the Academy of Medicine, the ingenious restoration appeared quite natural at a distance of ten or fifteen feet. The man is able to masticate his food, and he speaks without serious difficulty, but his face is taken off daily for washing. Of the four parts making up the new feature, the first is an apparatus of silver and tin holding the lower teeth. Nine upper teeth, are fixed in a plate of gold and vulcanite, and this kept in place by two small protuberances fitting into the nasal cavities, while at the back is a gold mechanism with hooks to fasten on the face piece. The third part comprises the chin and lower lip, with a false beard over the chin, two small bolts passing through the teeth to fix the lip to the artificial lower jaw. An upper lip and nose of painted rubber, with a false mustache attached, form the fourth part, which is fixed by two small clasps to the upper dental piece and jaw.

Tilting of the ground in storms has been studied by Prof. Umori of Japan. In October, 1904, a cyclone, the center of which passed over the sea to the east, tilted the ground at Tokio 3½ seconds toward the area of low pressure; and in January, 1906, a cyclone center passing northeastward over the land near Tokio gave a tilting first to the east and then to the westward, as the low pressure moved onward, the total change of inclination being 2.87 seconds. The ground rose under low pressure while in the former case it sank—a difference explained by the fact that the rise of sea-level commonly more than compensates for lowered air pressure, so that the pressure on the sea bottom is actually greater with low barometer.

Having noted 16 cases of eczema of lips or chin from tooth powders or liquid dentrifices, German physician has investigated, peppermint oil proving the common irritant, through other oils sometimes have like effect.

The dictograph of M. H. Turner, has been attracting attention in London, is a novel telephone, designed to give convenient communication between the various departments of a business house or factory. A box a foot long, half as wide, and a third as deep, has two recessed openings on its outer face, and a row of switches along its base gives connection with the different departments in the building. Flexible wires lead to the regular system of conductors of the establishment. The openings are transmitter and receiver, and special microphones of great sensitiveness focus and magnify the sound waves. Speaking in an ordinary tone, the persons conversing may attend to their usual work, walking about the room ten or 15 feet from the instrument. The spokenat words that distance from the transmitter are loudly sounded at the receiver, but depressing a lever throws the loud-speaking attachment out of gear, when a small receiver at the side of the box is held to the ear in usual way.

Even the splash of a drop is of sufficient importance to receive scientific investigation. Prof. A. M. Worthington, of the Royal Engineering College at Devonport, England, has found that a drop of water falling into water, excavates a perfectly spherical hollow, which is lined with the liquid of the drop, reaches its greatest depth as the water rising attains its maximum height, is enormously greater in volume than the water thrown out. With a fall of 80 inches, the pit has 360 times the volume of the ejected water; with a fall of 16 inches, 44 times.

Suitable eyeglasses are reported to have recently cured a victim of severe epileptic attacks, after he had undergone two surgical operations with no relief. The patient's own conviction that his eyes had something to do with his trouble was entirely disregarded, as quite contrary to all previous experience.

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It purifies and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in-stock, you can easily procure it by enclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

A lawyer was cross-questioning a Negro witness in one of the justice court the other day, and was getting along fairly well until he asked the witness what his occupation was.

"I see a carpenter, sah."

"What kind of a carpenter?"

"They call me a jack-leg carpenter, sah."

"What is a jack-leg carpenter?"

"He is a carpenter who is not a first class carpenter, sah"

"Well, explain fully what you understand a jack-leg carpenter to be," insisted the lawyer

THE LEDGER TAKES NEW FORM.

The Ledger this week celebrates the anniversary of its birth by greeting its readers in larger size and more convenient form. We have discarded the folio or four-page style for the quarto or eight-page form. The change increases the size of the paper materially. In its former shape the Ledger was printed on a sheet 26x40 inches, whereas the size now adopted demands a sheet 30x44 inches, the enlargement amounting to 180 square inches. The pages are smaller—15-22 instead of 20x26 inches. The reduced size of page will be found much handier, both for reader and advertiser, especially when it reaches the subscriber, as it is designed it shall do, cut and pasted. We have contemplated this improvement for some. Over two years ago all necessary machinery was purchased—Simplex typesetter, a larger and higher grade power press, folder and trimmer, and electric motors supplying the power—with that end in view. We were not able to see our way clear to make the change at that time, not being sufficiently versed in the management of the newly-installed machinery. Notwithstanding the increase in size the Ledger will continue to be printed entirely at home, remaining in this respect in a class by itself among the newspapers of Amador county. Under the present management the Ledger has never resorted to the patent outside or inside sheet. When it passed into other hands, it was for a time converted into a patent outside sheet, and so we found it upon our repurchase of the plant in 1901. But it thereafter remained such only a few weeks, or until we could make arrangements to revert back to the all-home-print plan. With the exception of the Calaveras Prospect, there is not another paper published the same size as the Ledger on the all-home-print system in all the mother lode tier of counties.

Beside enlarging the size, we have decided to reduce the subscription price to $2 per year, if paid strictly in advance. While the Ledger has been for many years the highest-priced paper in the county, it has easily held its position at the head of the list in bona fide circulation and the number of its readers. The subscription receipts published from month to month is a sufficient attestation of this statement. But we wish to increase the circulation, and offset any excuse on the ground of price. Every family and property-holder should have the Ledger as a regular weekly visitor. It will hereafter cost no more than any other of the county papers. Our clubbing rates with metropolitan and other journals—which we have found to be so popular a feature—will continue the same as heretofore.

We contemplate introducing new features of interest in the near future. In the hurry of making the change this week our readers must overlook all shortcomings, as our time has been too much occupied with the mechanical work to give the usual attention to the matter of news.

The Ledger looks to its friends to aid in the task of publishing a newsy paper. We want them to send in any items of interest transpiring in their respective localities. We have more space to fill up, and we need the aid of correspondents in filling it with live local matter. We need a correspondent in all localities where have no representative at present. To all such we will furnish necessary supplies and an abundance of reading matter, also other and more substantial inducements to those living in important centers of population. Now who will volunteer in this cause? Let us hear from you on this subject.

THE FINANCIAL FLURRY.

The wave of financial distrust and excitement that is now sweeping over the country is no more than what has been anticipated in financial circles for months past. It is the natural outcome of the trend of events. Hundreds of thousands of persons who have money to invest decline to venture under existing conditions. Securities considered among the most stable have shrunk in value to an extent that has given birth to a universal feeling of distrust. Public confidence is shaken, a panicky feeling has taken possession of the people, the timid retire their idle money into hiding, and the ordinary venturesome investor hesitates to let go under the impression that the tide of depression has not yet reached its flood. Big banking institutions in New York and elsewhere have been forced to suspend; the national government has thrown millions of dollars to aid the banks; governors of states have declared a holiday season to avert the monetary drain. Meanwhile big enterprises are suspending, throwing thousands out of employment, thereby feeding the panicky situation. Of course, the apprehension of disaster is mainly groundless, but it exists, and how to restore confidence is the paramount question. We doubt whether the policy of declaring public holidays, thereby hampering business, will aid in that direction. Meanwhile it is the height of folly for persons to rush to the banks to withdraw their deposits. The exercise of patience and sound judgment is the right way to meet a crisis like this.

Governor Gillett, at the request of bankers of the interior principally, has decided to declare a succession of legal holidays, for the purpose of tiding over the financial crisis. It is probable that few banking institutions will take advantage of the breathing spell. The holidays started yesterday.

AN ALLEGED BIG MINING SWINDLE

W. O. Manson, who is Interested in Several Local Enterprises, Said to be Involved.

A gigantic mining swindle, involving the sum of $300,000, profits from which are said to have been $80,000 to the man who engineered the deal while he still retains control of the property, is alleged in a complaint filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. The suit involves 1,200 acres of ground.

Complainants are D. T. Adams of Duluth, Minn., and a syndicate of capitalist residing near Chicago, and defendants are W. O. Manson, a Chicago promoter, formerly of New York; A. J. Jarmuth of Denver; the Calaveras California Mining Co., J. C. Campbell, William H. Metson and P. C. Drew, local attorneys; H. R. McGuinn, Frank J. Solinsky and Frank E. Webe, attorneys; E. W. Wilson, C. H. Oatman, J. A. McKenzie and John A. Walls.

There is no charge of fraud made against Campbell, Metson and Drew.

According to the complaint Manson entered an agreement with complainants, claiming that he knew of a well paying mining property which, through his friend Jarmuth, could be bought for $250,000 and for the purchase of which he was to have $80,000 commission.

Mine is Bought.

The mine was owned by Mrs. Cordelia Wright, whom he is alleged to have represented as a woman who would raise the price if approached by any other person than Jarmuth. With this understanding his associates declare they left all arrangements in his hands.

With the mine was to be secured reservoir, pipe-line and mills.

Manson got the mine. He was then authorized to form a company under the California laws with a directorate of seven, to be turned over to plaintiffs upon payment and delivery of a certain portion of stock.

Now it is alleged that Manson, with four of his men in the directorate, retains control of the company and that he failed to turn over to it the reservoir site which is valued at $35,000. Without this reservoir it is claimed the mine cannot be worked.

Charged $200,000 Paid.

Two notes for $100,000 each are alleged to have been negotiated to Manson and it is alleged that this sum was $80,000 more than he was compelled to pay for the mine.

It is charged that the whereabouts of Manson is not known.

A further note is for $100,000, which was transferred to a man named John A. Walls. This, the plaintiffs allege is not rightfully owed and they seek its recovery. This is said now to be in possession of Campbell, Metson, Drew, Oatman and McKenzie, and they are made parties to the suit to prevent it being removed from the jurisdiction of the court.

An injunction is asked preventing Manson from voting his shares of stock in the company, from attempting to collect the note issued to Walls, or from disposing of the reservoir site.

It is further sought to recover the $80,000 which it is alleged has been paid over and above the cost of the property, and the court is asked to order that the reservoir site be delivered to the company.

Court Order Issued.

Judge Van Fleet issued an order to show cause why an injunction should not be issued as prayed for and in the meantime granted a temporary restraining order against the defendant Walls from assigning the note, and against Campbell, Metson, Drew, Oatman and McKenzie from letting the note pass out of their hands. The matter went over one week.

Devlin and Devlin and Clarence S. Darrow are the attorneys for the complainant.—S. F. Examiner.

W. O. Manson is not unknown as a promoter and operator in Amador county. We understand it was he who promoted the sale of a large block, practically a controlling interest, in the Argonaut mine some months ago, to Mr. Mathews. He is also reported to be interested in the Ione and Eastern railroad, some say that he is the largest stockholder in that concern, and is also interested in the Amador Lumber Company. His transactions in this county were regarded as perfectly legitimate. He is a shrewd promoter. His home is said to be in Chicago.

The Union Construction Company filed a suit in the Superior Court of Tuolumne county last Friday for $24,650 damages for alleged negligence against the Western Union Telegraph Co. in the San Francisco office. The complaint states that messages sent to the Risdon Iron works of San Francisco were not delivered for more than twelve hours, causing the loss of the above named amount.

October 27th was President Roosevelt's forty-ninth birthday. No celebration marked the event. He did not depart from his customary program of worship, work, and recreation. The day was spent at the White House beside in a quiet family rejoicing. Congratulations in large numbers, by mail, telegraph and telephone were received during the day.
